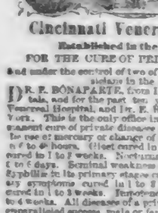
MEDICAL.



Cincinnati Venereal Hospital,

Established in the year 1850,

FOR THE CURE OF PRIVATE DISEASES,

And under the control of two of the most eminent Physicians in the West.

DR. P. E. BONAPARTE, from London and Paris Hospitals, and for the past ten years of the Cincinnati Venereal Hospital, and R. R. Reynolds, late of New York. This is the only office in the city where a permanent cure of private diseases can be obtained without the use of mercury or change of diet. Gonorrhœa cured in 6 to 48 hours. Gleet cured in 5 to 11 days. Stricture cured in 1 to 3 weeks. Nocturnal emissions stopped in 1 to 6 days. Seminal weakness cured in 2 weeks. Syphilis in its primary stage cured in 3 days. Secondary symptoms cured in 1 to 3 weeks. Skin diseases cured in 1 to 3 weeks. Impotency, where restored in 1 to 4 weeks. All diseases of a private nature treated with unparalleled success, male or female.

Dr. Bonaparte's great work on private diseases, the private guide to health, is beautiful to all, male and female; the old and young should read the book. It will enlighten those who grope in darkness. Price 25 cents, sent by mail.

Dr. Bonaparte's Celebrated Preventive never has nor never will fail—married ladies can safely use it—no exposure, as one at the hazard of the whole health can possess this invention. Price reduced to $5.

Dr. Bonaparte's French Patent Male Safe! It is perfectly safe, and never fails to give satisfaction. It is the only safe and sure preventive against pregnancy and disease. The price is $5 per dozen. French Pocket Safe, 1 for the single one, 64 per hal dozen, $7 per dozen, sent by mail.

Dr. Delamne Logier's Female Monthly Pills are a safe and reliable remedy for suppressions and all female diseases. La dies should not use them during pregnancy, as they will produce miscarriage. Price $3 per box—extra fine $5—sent to any address by mail.

Dr. B. & R. are the men to consult, they are unquestionably acknowledged to be the champion and sand king of venereal diseases, and the only Doctors who receive Monthly Reports from the old world; they have been at eastward from an early age of youth to witness the various diseases which afflict mankind, and to watch the progress, through a long career of professional study, in every sphere of life, from the humble abode of poverty to the mansions of the wealthy, and having ascertained beyond a doubt the vast suffering of humanity, they determined to select the preventive system as their particular study, and to devote their whole attention to the alleviation of the diseases of those important functions so bitterly will be answered unless they contain a remit tance or a postage stamp.

A CURE FOR CONSUMPTION.

COMPOUND SIRUP of SPIKENARD and TAR.

THIS SIRUP WILL CURE CONSUMPTION AND all kinds of Coughs and Colds, Bronchitis, Asthma and Dyspepsia. It acts upon the liver and purifies the blood, improves the appetite and cleans the complexion. This medicine is made of the best and purest materials, and is the only preparation.

I also make a Medicine for scrofula, also a Medicine for Worms and for Felons before they are open, also a Prepara tion for the bore Eyes, Summer Complaint, and the Yellow Tumors. These Medicines are all made of herbs, and are for sale in the Drug Store of J. Gottschalk & Co., on corner of Green and Eleventh streets.

John Colgan & Co., on corner of Tenth and Walnut streets.

E. C. Went, on Market street, above Preston.

Schmitt & Sutton, on corner of Eighth and Jefferson streets.

I can recommend Mrs. Limebaugh's Compound Sirup of Spikenard and Tar. I have been sick for a long time, have had several doctors, and the last a thorough one. I was very much swollen and had a severe cough. After using four medicine a while I was cured of my cough, and relieved of my swelling. My complexion is good, and now I am doing my own work.

My youngest child is but a baby enough for a long time, as severe that I for a motherless was spitting blood and coughing in the shape of a chicken bone, but she is now well and looks well. She had been treated by the doctors for a long time but they all failed to cure her cough. Now she is well.

I will ever remain your friend.

Mrs. JULIA WILLS

LOUISVILLE, August 6, 1861.

Mrs. L. LIMEBAUGH—Madam: I have used your Compound Sirup in my family for some time, which I have found a effective remedy for coughs, colds, and all diseases of the throat and bronchial differentiae, for the three bottles that it is as a favorable compound for the relief of laryngeal and bronchial differentiae, for the three bottles I have used have relieved me more than anything I have taken, and I think it will cure any one, particularly if I continue to use it. If my opinion is to its superior character can be of any service you are at liberty to use it as you think proper.

Rev. ELIJAH SUTTON.

Any persons suffering with any of the diseases mentioned above can be accommodated with board and good attention. I have desirable rooms for families or single gentlemen desiring private boarding.

FRIDAY, SEPTEMBER 27, 1861.

THE DUTY OF THE UNION MEN.—We are daily receiving letters, and so, we understand, are Gen. Anderson and Gen. Crittenden, giving information of the arming of secessionists, their nightly drills, their larceny of guns in the custody of Union men, and their departure in squads for the Confederate camps, and asking that military forces may be sent to arrest their operations. To our friends everywhere who make such appeals, we have to say, that, although we sincerely thank them for the information they communicate in regard to the movements of our enemies, it is utterly impossible, so far as we know or believe, to send them the aid they ask.

Gen. Anderson and Gen. Crittenden have no forces here that they can send to different counties in the interior or upon the borders to prevent secession depredations or arrest secession squads on their way to the hostile camps. Those gallant and accomplished officers are exerting all their great energies to concentrate armies for important military operations, and we must earnestly appeal to our Union friends at all the thousands of points throughout the State to take care of themselves and accomplish whatever they can in their respective counties and neighborhoods. In many places they may labor under very great disadvantages, but let them labor still, and with all the might of souls determined and unconquerable. Let them band themselves together in secret or open league, arm themselves with whatever weapon they can obtain, and fight treason at every odds rather than let it go unfought.

Our friends must in many cases be unable to do all they desire, but, if they do all they can, they will do nobly.

THE TREASON OF S. B. BUCKNER.—It is not necessary to state that this journal has always been reluctant to draw invidious distinctions between individuals. Indeed, it has never done so. It rarely, if ever, adverts to persons except as they involve important public interests. Principles are paramount; heads and hands are merely the wheels and hammers wherewith principles turn and forge themselves into a more precise and thorough expression—into moral and civil systems—into empires and epochs. Persons then derive their only public importance from the principles they impersonate. "Plato and Aristotle mean philosophy," says M. Victor Cousin, "and Cæsar great political and military genius." Every moderately-informed citizen of the United States knows what Coriolanus meant—what Attila meant—what the Volscians, the Goths, and the Vandals mean; every schoolboy in his first Latin forms knows what Catiline meant, as well as Sallust himself; and we all know that it is sometimes necessary to compare the lesser with the greater in order to survey, analyze, and classify them in the better light of their own standards and models. We do not, by any means, wish to convey the impression that we impute either Platonic or imperial importance, or even magisterial or ecclesiastical importance, to either of the very mediocre triumvirate of Brigadier Generals who have thrust themselves unbidden into Southern Kentucky and brought large and lawless armies along with them to dine and to conquer. On the contrary, the evidence is spontaneous—visible in all we see—audible in all we hear—palpable in all we feel—conclusive everywhere—that neither of these misguided persons can "mean" anything very great or good, either in philosophy, politics, or religion. We do not at all believe that Gen. Z. Wheeler can compare with Cæsar; Bishop Polk with St. Paul; or Gen. Buckner with Chancellor Bacon! We do not believe that Gen. Zollicoffer is any more a soldier of Civilization than we believe that Bishop Polk is a "soldier of the Cross." And we do not believe that "Brigadier-General S. B. Buckner C. S. A." exile his Bowling Green proclamation, or any other citizen who abandons this Commonwealth to accept commission to invade her, as he has done, has any more right to call himself and his aggressive train-bands of Tennessee bridge-burners Kentuckians, than Catiline had to call himself and his confederate conspirators Romans! S. B. Buckner! you were a Kentuckian once—but what and who are you now? You may put forth false protestations and plausible proclamations until ten thousand heroic and utterly unconquerable Kentucky hearts—your brothers born—are cold and pulseless forever with the ungrateful treachery of your accursed steel, but the same awful and almighty hand of retributive justice which traced the terrible doom of Belshazzar upon the fated walls of his obscene banquet-halls has deeply and indelibly graven upon your consciousness and conscience—upon your body and your soul—upon your forehead and your features—upon the palm of your hand that the hilt of your disloyal sword may feel it—upon the soles of your feet that every hostile stride you take upon your native soil may attest it. "You are a recreant to Kentucky: you are a Kentuckian no more!" Conspirator! survey the seventy unsullied and resplendent years of this glorious and patriarchal Commonwealth, and you will see no instance of such flagrant recusancy and unnatural ingratitude as yours. Thanks be to the omnipotent Maker of all true and patriotic men, and to the brave and incorruptible genius of this noble State, you are the first of all her cherished and invincible offspring to desert, to betray, to invade, and to defy her. And as you are the first, so may the God of nations and guardian angels of "our lives, our fortunes, and our sacred honor," grant that you may be the last! Four weeks ago you were in the capital of that country which permitted you to be born free—assidnously seeking for some available pretext to misrepresent her to the citizens of your native State, in order to completely estrange them from that Union to which the immortal Clay said he owed an allegiance superior to that which he owed his State. You passed into the very presence of the National Councils, and your pestilential respiration was indulged. You clothed yourself in the proud and unquestionable privileges of a citizen of Kentucky, and were not molested. You visited and surveyed the defences of the Capital, took note of her forces and her fortifications, and acquired a thorough knowledge of the organization and equipment of her armies under the ægis of your honored State and your citizenship, even while your very looks as well as your language proclaimed you a traitor in disguise. And then you returned to the State whose confidence you had so basely abused and dishonored, and pretended that you had been "distrusted" and badly treated by the authorities of the nation! S. B. Buckner! you have for months been distrusted by upright and loyal men wherever you have been known. You publicly protested in these very columns entire and unconditional fidelity to the State and your readiness to share her destinies to the last, whatever they might be; you insidiously intrigued; worked, rode, and wrote; strained every muscle, nerve, and tendon to its utmost tension of treachery, to estrange, to betray, to revolutionize, and to destroy her. You infected all with whom you had the slightest personal influence—both citizens and soldiers; you poisoned, embittered, and instigated the State Guard; you discovered an easy method to violate solemn obligations and sacred pledges yourself, and recklessly violated all you ever owed or gave either to God or man, and covertly taught all others whom you could teach to do likewise; you corrupted many of your subordinate officers, and all whom you could corrupt; and they, in turn, corrupted their subordinates, and all whom they could corrupt; you, and your apt accomplices—as we all knew you were doing—established camps of treason wherever you could establish them; you drilled, deceived, and seduced all whom you could seduce—the young—the inexperienced—the unwary—the credulous—the generous—and the impulsive; you, and your corrupt and vile associate conspirators in arms gave our unsuspecting, loyal, and high-spirited young men their first inculcations of error, oath-breaking, and falsehood; you taught them that it was a high and incomparable proof of virtue and honor to seize, secrete, and steal away beyond the limits of the State the untarnished arms which the Commonwealth had entrusted to them solely for her defence; you taught them treason—twefold treason, manifold treason, treason like your own, treason to your country, treason to your State, treason to every one of your family, your friends, and your fellow-citizens; you counselled with the enemies of the State: you conspired with the emissaries of Tennessee whose hordes bristled with bayonets, mustered to invade your birth-place and subjugate your kindred; you were offered a commission and a camp in the service of that hostile State: you went to Washington with treason in your soul, to seek some plausible excuse for the betrayal of the great and inviolable trust of Kentucky—your accessories were already leaving the State in large numbers at your previous instigation; you were coldly received, as you deserved to be by some—you were received with military courtesy and consideration, as you did not deserve to be, by others. You left Washington with all the information which you could obtain and convey—you returned to Kentucky—resigned the command which you had already corrupted and betrayed to the extent of your crafty abilities—clutched your fratricidal commission from Richmond or from Tennessee—deserted at the juncture of invasion the impaled and imperilled State which you had so often and so zealously pledged yourself to defend, and placed yourself at the head and front of that very invasion—and are now become the first and foremost of all her insolent and insatiable invaders.

Such, S. B. Buckner, are you, and such is the "strict neutrality" to which you have been so indefatigably devoted and which you undoubtedly mean to "carry out" with "the force under your "command." Such is your fidelity! Such is your audacity! Such are your professions, your proclamation, and your performances! Away with you! Away with your lawless horde! Away with your "pledges" and "assurances"—with your protestations, apologies, and proclamations, at once and altogether! Away, parricide! Away and do penance forever—to shriven or be slain—away! You have less palliation than Attila—less boldness, magnanimity, and nobleness than Coriolanus. You are the Benedict Arnold of the day! You are the Catiline of Kentucky! Go, then, miscreant! And may the infinite mercy of God and Heaven forgive and save you, for your country and your countrymen, your State, and your fellow-citizens never can—never.

☞ Every day we have to record acts of theft, robbery, and all sorts of depredation, committed by marauding bands from across the Tennessee line, and by predatory companies from Buckner's and Zollicoffer's camps, and by regular and irregular secession squads organizing themselves for plunder in different neighborhoods.

The case of the sudden incursion of a hundred mounted Tennesseans into Albany near the Cumberland river and the seizure of the guns, the goods, and the gold of the quiet citizens, was but a specimen of what is done daily in scores of places by bands acting under regular Confederate authority and led on by officers with Confederate commissions in their pockets. Good citizens of all kinds of opinions have been accustomed to hope, that, if there must be war, it would at least be conducted upon the high and honorable principles recognized among civilized nations. They know, that a state of warfare, at the best, is ever a dreadful evil, but they have earnestly trusted that the present war, waged among those claiming to be the most enlightened people of all the earth, would be managed on all sides in strict accordance with the loftiest requirements of the noblest and most refined chivalry. But, instead of the realization of their hope and trust, they now behold the Confederate armies and the allies of those armies in the midst of us engaging daily and nightly in the prosecution of a system of pillage and depredation upon the possessions of private citizens utterly disgraceful to the country and to the age.

This is in no proper sense a war that the Confederates and their allies are carrying on in our Southern and Southeastern and some of our interior counties. It cannot be dignified with the name of warfare. It knows nothing of the laws and rules that warfare recognizes. It is a gigantic system of theft, robbery, pillage, brigandage, land-piracy, assassination; and those who carry it on deserve the most awful penalties that can be inflicted by earth or heaven or hell.

MARION COUNTY PATRIOTISM.—When the Tennesseans were expected in Lebanon, the Home Guards of Marion county were called out. A boy of fifteen, who belonged to Capt. Allen Montgomery's company, went instantly to his mother, and said: "Ma, have you any objections to my going with pa and the company to help protect our country?" The patriotic mother replied: "My son, I have no objection to your fighting for your country, and, as your brother is a secessionist, I would, if I could be of any use, go with you and fill his place. Yes go, my son, let one that shall help drive the invaders from the soil of Kentucky. My prayers will go with you."

The lady's only brother and her secession son, hearing what the patriotic sister and mother had said, could resist no longer. They said they would go too, and help defend Kentucky. If all the mothers, sisters, and wives were as true to the interest of their country as this lady, how long would Kentucky be invaded?

ARISE! THY COUNTRY CALLS THEE.

I.

Arise! the country calls thee,
Hird on the sword made glorious
In many a strife victorious
No coward fear appalls thee.
The traitorous foe before thee stand,
Their armor gleaming in the sun!
Arise! and sweep them from the land,
Or perish in the trial.
'Tis Freedom's hour of need,
She bids thee dare the deed—
Advance, and fix thy burning eyes upon her:
She points thee to the fray,
She leads to glory's way,
But never—never—NEVER to dishonor!
Arise! thy country calls thee
By all her sacred story—
March on, and welcome death
Where Freedom leads to glory.

II.

Arise! thy country calls thee,
Her tears are interceding,
Her children with them pleading—
Go, thou, whate'er befalls thee,
Shall inspire hands her standard bear,
And we look tamely on the sight?
Where are the souls that heroes bear
To perish for her right?
O Liberty, inspire
Our hearts with patriot fire,
And call th' avenging hosts from hill and valley;
Our bleeding country save,
Her ancient banner wave,
Till millions breath the starry folds shall rally.
Arise! thy country calls thee
By all her sacred story—
March on, and welcome death
Where Freedom leads to glory.

J. H. THOMPSON.

LOUISVILLE, Sept. 20, 1861.

THE HOME GUARD—WHERE ARE THEY?—WHERE ARE THEIR GUNS?—There are some thousands of the Home Guard in different parts of the State, who have been freely supplied with arms, and we all know that high expectations have been entertained in regard to them. Their arms were asked and accepted under a pledge that they should, when called for, be used in defence of the State and of the country, and no one doubted that the pledge would be promptly and scrupulously kept. The indulgence of a doubt upon that subject would have seemed to be a deep insult to what appeared to be one of the finest and most chivalric bodies of young men in the nation.

But with shame and mortification we are constrained to announce that a considerable portion of the Home Guard have failed to redeem their pledge. They have not kept their military and personal faith. They have broken the promise by which they procured their arms. They have faltered at the point where their services are first needed. Their country calls, and they answer not. Their State calls, and they are mute. Their weapons hang idly upon the wall or are left where they may be stolen by the enemy. Is this to be tolerated? Is it not a burning shame to those guilty of it? Should not all such hide their heads in the earth at the thought of their recreancy?

Let none suppose that we mean to include the great body of the Home Guard in this denunciation. The great body, we are sure, are true, and will be true in every every emergency, no matter how deadly. As for the recreants, let them cast off, while yet they may, the crushing reproach that is upon them. Let them come forth now to render the service to which they are pledged, or their weapons, placed with confidence and trust in their hands, must be surrendered up. He, who now keeps the arms of the State or of the United States with no intention of using them aright, is no better than a traitor or any other sort of felon.

To these, who, with no cowardly or treasonable feeling, are merely inert, weasy, "worse up for shame"!

A CONSPIRACY THAT HASN'T SUCCEEDED.—Dr. Clay Meriwether, of Jefferson county, Ky., is, we understand, a captain in the Confederate service. At the hotel in Madisonville, Hopkins county, a few days ago, and subsequently in a stage-coach between Madisonville and Henderson in the company of other Confederate officers, he revealed a plan that had been laid for the capture, and, if necessary, the murder of the senior Editor of the Louisville Journal.

For some months past we, the editor aforesaid, were, until prevented by illness within the last few weeks, in the habit of going on one of the packets on Saturday evenings three or four times a month to West Point at the mouth of Salt river twenty miles below Louisville. Capt. Meriwether stated that the plan laid by himself and other secessionists was to ascertain beforehand when we were to make a trip and then either to disguise themselves and take passage with us in such force that they could seize us and take the control of the boat or else to plant themselves upon the shore at West Point to make us a prisoner on landing, and, if there should seem to be any difficulty in carrying us off in their custody, to put us out of the way upon the spot. He said, that, during our last trip, he was on the boat with us, but, that he was entirely unprepared, and, that he was cursing himself the whole distance for permitting us to take him thus unawares.

Capt. Meriwether furthermore said that he had got his eye upon a Union man's farm in Jefferson county which he would make himself master of when he and his brother Confederates should get to Louisville. We don't know the fellow even by sight, but we have heard enough of him to know that he is a coward as well as a villain and a traitor. He is miscreant enough to plan a murder, but he has not the nerve to execute one. He is one of those dastards who would point out a victim and hire a set of ruffians to strike the blow.

☞ The National Intelligencer has some very pertinent and timely remarks touching Missouri and Kentucky. "Next to the City of Washington," says that staunch advocate of the country's cause, "the States of Missouri and Kentucky engage, as they deserve to engage, the deepest interest of all loyal citizens who are alive to the importance, both civil and military, of the attitude they hold in the present crisis. Being slaveholding States, they stand, in common with loyal Maryland and Delaware, as so many indisputable witnesses to the nationality of the contest in which the Government is engaged—a contest visibly waged not against the institutions of any State, but for the maintenance of those constitutional rights which are common to all the States alike, whether slaveholding or non-slaveholding. The loss of Missouri and Kentucky, by the subjugation with which they are now menaced, would inflict an incurable wound on the prestige of the National Government, which would thus be shown unable to give to these States that protection from internal revolt and external violence which is due no less to its own obligations than to the great majority of loyal citizens who call aloud for the intervention of their Government. And, as has been well said by an eloquent defender of the Union cause, the war of invasion and subjugation now waged by the Confederates in Missouri and Kentucky, and with which Maryland is threatened, would become a war of devastation if carried beyond the boundaries of those States into the confines of the non-slaveholding States of the Union.

"It is in the light of these considerations, and in view of the desperate ends and aims undoubtedly proposed to themselves by the military and political leaders of the Confederate States, that the importance of defending the loyal status maintained by the great majority of the people of Missouri and Kentucky becomes apparent to every reflecting mind, and we doubt not the Government will instantly lend its best efforts to the rescue of the former and to the preservation of the latter from the calamities by which they are both environed. Their condition calls for the most prompt and vigorous action."

A CAPTURE.—When Jack Allen's cavalry were on their way from Greensburg to Bowling Green, one of the men named Crowe got drunk and was left behind. After a time he was missed, and three of his comrades were sent back Crowe-hunting. They found their Crowe, but the whole four were captured by the Union men, and they are now under the charge of a couple of officers at the Lebanon Junction.

One of the prisoners, named Griffith, is the brother of one of Jack Allen's captains. When asked what he thought of his situation, he replied that he thought he was "in the centre of a damned bad fix." It was a very enlightened opinion, expressed as well as could be expected.

☞ A scout, named R. S. Smith, in the service under Capt. Gibson at the mouth of Salt river, was badly wounded on Wednesday night by one of the Bullitt county scouts, who fired upon Capt. G.'s scouts by mistake. Mr. Smith is a resident of the West Point neighborhood, who joined Capt. Gibson there and rendered valuable service as a guide. He is now at the Marine Hospital in this city, and we warmly commend him to the care of the ladies of Louisville.

It is a most reprehensible practice for unauthorized parties to scout in the vicinity of military posts without communicating with the commanding officer. Let the unfortunate case we have recorded be a warning.

☞ Last Tuesday, there were about thirty men at Henderson from Camp Boone, evidently intending to seize upon the arms in that place. The Home Guard, however, were vigilant, and we presume that the banditti were foiled in their designs.

HEADQUARTERS ROUSSEAU'S BRIGADE, }
Two Miles from Elizabetown, Sept. 26. }

Appreciating, in its full extent, the harm that has been done in numberless instances since the war began by the thoughtless and uncalled for disclosures of newspaper correspondents, I lay down this rule for the government of my conduct—That I will publish no information of which the enemy can in any manner take advantage to the injury of the great cause. While it is very natural for our friends to be eager to know everything that may affect us, and while it would be gratifying to us for them to know it, they must remember that the enemy read the newspapers as well as themselves. In consequence of the indiscretion of correspondents the enemy have hitherto been kept just as well informed of our plans and resources as our own Generals have been, and this has been a fruitful source of distress to our arms. In several instances, the Government has been compelled to abandon elaborate and costly plans, at the very moment of their full ripeness for execution, on account of disclosures in the public prints. I go with the army as its historian, and not to be, in effect, a spy in the interest of the enemy. I shall faithfully depict the war; I shall explain the military significance of every important movement, and endeavor to give a faithful analysis of the intellectual part of the campaign; I shall set before the public as vivid and correct pictures of the battlefield with its melancholy mixture of glories and horrors as I have power to draw, and especially shall I record the gallant deeds of this heroic pioneer brigade of Kentucky, in which her pride, her hopes, and her affections are so largely enlisted; but I will not be an informer against my own cause by making heedless revelations which shall enable the enemy, with inferior numbers, to meet us in superior force at every point, as he has hitherto done.

This Brigade has had the post of honor in leading the advance of the enemy. They left their tents and provisions behind, and hurried forward to drive the enemy from the strong positions from which he threatened their native city. After reaching Lebanon Junction, Colonel Rousseau marched upon Muldraugh's Hill, but not finding the enemy there, he pushed on to Elizabethtown. By exercising great caution, he reached the town unobserved. His presence was not known until he was marching up the hill towards town. A number of the enemy were there, but they scampered away for dear life on our approach. The Brigade lay one night there, and then fell back to this encampment of the main army.

Adjutant H. C. Danlap, of the Louisville Legion, has been appointed Adjutant General of Gen. Sherman's Division. This appointment has been very gratifying to the Legion, and to the whole army. It is unquestionably the very best that could have been made. There does not live a more courteous gentleman or more gallant soldier than the Adjutant. He was won the esteem of everybody, high or low, that has become acquainted with him since he joined the army. Lieutenant Hoblitzel of the Brigade has been appointed aid to Gen. Sherman. He will be remembered as the recruiting officer whom the traitors seized at Elizabethtown, and tried to carry to Camp Boone. When still higher honors come to be distributed, I have no doubt the pioneer Brigade will be justly and generously remembered.

The men who in the face of opposition, contumely and menace, stepped forward to the aid of the Republic, should be remembered by the Republic now.

Major Barry has been suffering greatly for several days with neuralgia but is better this morning.

It is certain that the enemy have given up all thought of making a stand this side of Green River. They are falling back, burning bridges as they go. Every day intelligence is received of some fresh act of vandalism perpetrated by them. Yesterday their advanced body was within three miles of us; but were retreating. As they retire they tell the Union men what their fate shall be when Buckner gets up here. Union men from the lower counties arrive here in large numbers every day, seeking protection from violence. The proper place to protect them is on the Tennessee line. May we soon be there.

Yesterday Sergeant Anderson, of Capt. Ferguson's company, captured Walter Overton, one of the Editors of the Courier, who was on his way back. Four other prisoners were taken to-day whose destination was the same. It is reported here this evening that Buckner's miscreants destroyed Green river bridge last night. If the report be well founded, they must be getting scared.

To the Editors of the Louisville Journal:

STANFORD, Ky., Sept. 21, 1861.

GENTLEMEN: Yesterday the secessionists of Crab Orchard came in, gave up their arms to the Union men, claimed protection at their hands, and promised loyalty to the Union. There is a good feeling now prevailing at that place. I believe the disunionists here and all over the county now are willing to take up arms to drive the invaders from our soil. There is a very determined feeling here in old Lincoln to drive the invaders from the State. When the conflict comes, you will have a glorious account of old Lincoln.

Very respectfully, H.

N. B. At Lancaster, yesterday, quite a number of secessionists took the oath to support the Government. We are getting things here all straight.

FROM GEN. SHERMAN'S COMMAND.

CAMP ANDERSON, }
LEBANON JUNCTION, Sept. 24, 1861. }

To the Editors of the Louisville Journal:

We were not correctly informed of the movements of the Sumpter Greys (H. G.), or we would not have written that they had had a skirmish at Elizabethtown. In noticing particularly this company, we had no intention whatever of disparaging the many other worthy companies here in camp. If space had permited me, I would have stated that Captains Jesse Hammond and J. D. Durell had the largest companies on the ground, and that this was owing to their good management of their men.

In alluding to Col. Harlan's being designated to drill a battalion, nothing was farther from our thoughts than an intentional reflection upon Maj. A. Y. Johnson, of the Home Guard. Indeed, it was our impression at the time of penning the article, that Major Johnson had requested one of the Captains to drill the battalion, and that Capt. Harlan had acceded to the request. It appearing now, however, that we were in error in the matter, we take the first opportunity of making proper amends. Major Johnson is a gentleman of affable and agreeable manners, who understands the duties of the responsible office, and he has succeeded in an eminent degree in making himself acceptable to his command. There are so many reports current in camp that it is sometimes impossible to get at the real facts. We have made the foregoing correction, feeling that it was our duty so to do, and we hope that it will be satisfactory.

OFFICER OF THE GUARD.

To the Editors of the Louisville Journal:

GEORGETOWN, KY., Sept. 23.

GENTLEMEN: I write you a line, hoping to be able to serve the cause of the Union in an humble way. I am, with all the rest of our friends here, pleased at your manly stand for the priceless heritage bequeathed us by our forefathers, and we are glad to see that by your influence treason is beginning to tremble in Kentucky. The traitors here are as quiet and meek as so many lambs, and the Union cause has complete sway. Do not be deceived by the report that Breckinridge & Co. have gone to the mountains. It is circulated by their friends to deceive us. I am informed by a reliable gentleman that they crossed the Kentucky river going to Lawrenceburg on Saturday, and have no doubt sought refuge with Buckner. That fiend incarnate, Theo. GEN. HARLAN'S CALL FOR VOLUNTEERS.—We invite especial attention to Gen. John M. Harlan's stirring call for a Regiment of volunteers. We trust that a thousand brave Kentuckians will respond to him as the billows respond to the voice of the storm-spirit.

Gen. Harlan is in all respects one of the first men of our State. Although young, he has won distinguished fame by his powerful efforts at the bar and upon the hustings, and none who know him need be told that he is the very flower of knightly chivalry.

We say to the noblest of our young Kentuckians, that they will find in John M. Harlan a worthy leader.

TO THE PEOPLE OF KENTUCKY.

I have been authorized to raise a regiment of infantry to be mustered into the service of the United States and to form a part of the force under the command of General Robert Anderson.

Companies will be received from any part of the State.

Each company will be composed of not less than 81 nor more than 101 men, rank and file, and will elect their own officers.

The cost of transportation to the place of rendezvous (which will be hereafter designated) as well as the cost of subsisting the troops previous to their being mustered into the service, will be paid by the Government. Lieutenant-Colonel, Major, and other regimental officers, will be selected in due time. The regiment will be supplied with good arms.

No written authority is necessary to raise companies. Let individuals organize them as rapidly as possible and report to me the names of the officers selected by the respective companies. Address me at Louisville, Kentucky.

And now I appeal to my fellow-Kentuckians to come forward and enroll themselves for service. Their invaded State appeals to them. Their foully-wronged and deeply-imperilled country appeals to them. The cause of human liberty and of Republican institutions everywhere appeals to them. All that is most glorious in human government is now at stake, and every true man should come to the rescue.

The time, fellow-citizens, has come, when even the unpatriotic and the selfish should hasten to take up arms for the common defence of their State and country. Every consideration of enlightened self-interest calls us to the field. If our enemies triumph, all our trades, all our professions, all our avocations of whatever character, all our possessions of every description, become valueless. To save ourselves and our families from ruin, not less than to save our State and our country from degradation and shame, we must rally now where the National flag invites us. Come, then, let us gird up the whole strength of our bodies and souls for the conflict, and may the God of Battles guide home every blow we strike. For one, I am unwilling to see the people of my native State overrun and conquered by men claiming to be citizens of a foreign government. I cannot be indifferent to the issue which an unnatural enemy has forced upon Kentuckians.

JOHN M. HARLAN.

AFFAIRS ON THE NASHVILLE RAILROAD.—We have positive information to the effect that Gen. Sherman, in command of the Federal troops, has established his headquarters at a point about two miles north of Elizabethtown, and that telegraphic communication between Gen. Anderson and Gen. Sherman was established yesterday, the line having been erected under the supervision of Mr. Harrington, of the Marion Rifle Zouaves.

Gen. Sherman is in the possession of information from Gen. Buckner's command, and is confident that the rebel force does not exceed five thousand men, many of whom are but indifferently armed.

The advance of Gen. Sherman's command is at a point between Elizabethtown and Muldraugh's Hill, and the commander is confident in the strength of his position.

Perfect quiet reigned along the line of General Sherman's forces at a late hour last evening from the encampment of Louisville Home Guards, at the Bardstown Junction to the advance of the army, which is led by the Forty-ninth Ohio Regiment.

THE WEBSTER GREYS.—This is the only military company remaining in the city, and it is doing us a good service. Every night a detachment of from eight to twelve is doing guard duty at the refreshment stand, in the depot yard, thereby securing those refreshments from being molested or distrubed in any way except by the proper committee. This service is a most important one, and its freedom from danger renders the gallant fellows who perform it so uncomplainingly all the more deserving of sympathy and praise.

AID FOR THE TROOPS.—A gentleman who has been engaged in the work of soliciting contributions for the gallant soldiers in the encampments near this city, wishes us to express his thanks of all humane persons to Messrs. Young, Dodge, Baker, Slevin, Platt, Winters, Fletcher, and Mark & Downs for their liberal contributions, and wishes us to enforce the appeal to others to come forward at once with donations of articles necessary to the health and comfort of the brave boys who are perilling their lives for the defence of the city.

FAST DAY AT THE CATHEDRAL.—The national fast was solemnly observed by the Roman Catholic Church of this city yesterday. Occurring upon a day which has never been observed by the Catholics as a day of fasting, the Right Reverend Bishop issued a special call for the observance of the day. Prayers for the Government and those in authority were made at each service during the day and evening.

ARRESTS.—Five persons, named Messrs. W. G. Overton, Jos. W. Griffith, H. G. Thentoun, Anderson McDowell, and F. M. Crow, were arrested near New Haven, Nelson county, yesterday, by order of Col. Pope, and were brought to this city by a detachment of Home Guards under Lieutenant Vanseggern, of the Thurston Guards.

MAJ. A. Y. JOHNSON.—No less than thirty-four commissioned officers of the Home Guard at Camp Anderson have petitioned Gen. Robert Anderson to authorize Major "Bis" Johnson to raise a regiment for the United States service and for the defence of Kentucky. Mayor Johnson is an old soldier, and is admirably adapted to the command of a regiment.

FOR THE SOUTH.—We learn from good authority that a party of three hundred men, from the surrounding counties, having in their possession two hundred and fifty mules and one hundred negroes, passed through Bloomfield, Nelson county, on Sunday, on their way South.

ARREST OF JAMES B. CLAY.—We learn from a private telegraphic despatch that James B. Clay has been arrested at a point near Lexington by the Federal troops on the charge of aiding the Southern rebellion.

LIFE AT FORT LAFAYETTE.—Some interesting statistics and some amusing gossip in reference to affairs at Fort Lafayette, in New York harbor, may be found on our fourth page this morning.

☞Dr. Goddard requests us to say that families who have left blankets at the Louisville and Nashville Depot, will find them at the store of Mr Callihan, corner of Ninth and Broadway.

The Seat of War in Kentucky.

THE SITUATION.

The map which we present in this issue will convey at once to the eye and mind of the reader a correct idea of the situation of the opposing forces in Kentucky. The topography of the country is clearly indicated, but may be described advantageously to the reader. Louisville, the United States Headquarters, is situated on the Northern boundary of the State, is connected by river and rail with the whole of the Northern States, and also by rail with the country of active operations, as indicated. The plain on which it is situated extends, with but few interruptions, and none of a serious character, for thirty-five miles south of Rolling-Fork river, where rail communication with the country beyond has been interrupted by the destruction of the bridge Crossing this stream, which is about two hundred feet in width and three feet deep at the ford, near the bridge lately burned, a good road leads through a level country for two miles to the foot of the series of hills known as Muldraugh's Hills. Their ascent is of the most rugged character. The railroad follows a little stream called Clear Creek, crossing it about half way up the ascent by a trestel work ninety feet high. Further on it again crosses a smaller stream tributary to Clear Creek, and, passing through a similarly rugged country, enters, near its base, Muldraugh's, more properly Tunnel, Hill, and emerges on a smooth and level plain, which extends uninterruptedly for many miles south to Green river, thus forming the table land of the State. Tunnel Hill, it will be seen, is the last of a series forming the ascent from the lowlands to the table land of Kentucky, and its virtue as a stronghold depends upon the direction of an approach. Against an attack from the north it presents many advantages, but these become useless against an advance from the south. The Tunnel Hill commands those immediately south of it, and they in turn command their northern neighbors. The Union force, to fight to advantage, must fight beyond Muldraugh's Hill, and for this purpose require a strong force. To admit the foe to advance as far as the Hill would be to allow them to possess themselves of what would be a stronghold to them and which possession would result in the destruction of the most important and costly part of the whole railroad line. Four miles from Tunnel Hill, Elizabethtown, the advance of the United States forces, is reached. This is an old and rather dilapidated town, with about 1,500 inhabitants, and presenting no features of importance. It was the centre of a strong dissunion community, composed of a class controlled by ex-Gov. John L. Helm, who is a resident of the town. The rabels looked forward to it for winter quarters should their attempt on Louisville fail.

Nolin Creek is the first stream of any importance south of Elizabethtown on the line of the railroad. It is at all times fordable, the rail and turnpike roads crossing it near its headwaters. Thence to Green river the country is a plain, level sward of rich country—well watered and producing plenty. The country immediately on the banks of Green river is very rough and poor. The banks of the river at the point crossed by the railroad are very steep. The turnpike road, crossing the river at Munfordsville, winds down a steep declivity, and all vehicles cross the river by boat. The stream here is seldom fordable, is exceedingly swift and dangerous. Beyond Green river and extending to Barren river are the barrens of Kentucky, as beautiful prairie land as is to be seen in the West, but not very extensive.

Bowling Green, the present basis of Southern operations in Kentucky, is a point of great strategetic importance. Located at the junction of the two Kentucky railroads which enter Tennessee, it affords transportation to an almost unlimited extent, and an army in force there could draw reinforcements and supplies to the full capacity of the Confederate States to spare them. The approaches to the town by railroad can be commanded by a small force, as the track crosses a bridge over Barren river.

THE DEPARTMENT OF CUMBERLAND.

A glance at the officers who have control of the Department of the Cumberland, will, no doubt, interest our readers and thus early in the campaign render them familiar with the characters of those around whom so many true Kentuckians are rallying.

Brig. Gen. Robert Anderson.

This officer, by right of seniority, has been placed in command of the Department, and, as is well understood, ranks his fellow Brigadiers, Thomas, Sherman, Ward, and Smith. General Anderson is of the regular service, which he entered originally as a 2d Lieutenant by brevet in the 2d artillery, his command dating from July 1, 1845. He is a native of Jefferson county, Kentucky, and his appointment was from his native State. He was brevetted a major on the 8th of September, 1847, and ten years after became Major by succession. He has been constantly in the service and has won for himself an excellent reputation as an officer of ability and a man of honor and integrity, and his moral character as a humane, kind, generous, and religious man are unsurpassed by that of any officer in any department of the country. Affable, bland, and pleasant in his deportment, his charms all who have intercourse with him, and renders himself popular with all under his command. His reputation and character were confined to the army and the profession, until he made his name dear and established his fame throughout the nation by his faithfulness to his country and his defiance of treason and defence of the Union when Sumpter was beleaguered by its foes. His stronghold was captured but the flag he had fought under was lowered only when all hope of further resistance was in vain.

In his administration of the department under his control he has been eminently successful, and we have nothing to fear, if the Administration which he serves will furnish the aid he may demand.

Brig. Gen. W. T. Sherman,

In command of the Brigade now established in the camp of occupation on and beyond Muldraugh's Heights, is known as an officer and man of sterling merit, and is possessed of a thorough military education. He is a native of Ohio, about forty years of age, a graduate of West Point, and for many years President of the Louisiana State Military Academy. We regret that the Army Register, which we have at hand, does not mention him, as he had at its date left the service for a time. He is a tall, spare man—not wiry nor bent. His form, though slight, has a commanding appearance. He is quick spoken—rather gruff in his manners and answers. He thinks a great deal, but speaks little. His mind is visibly absorbed in his duties, and his time is devoted to performing them. He is an officer whom his men soon learn to place confidence in. They respect and admire him for his ability and decision, and are universally filled with the belief that he is the man. He is a busy man—seen everywhere and seeing everything. Nothing escapes him, and nothing goes unnoticed.

Capt. F. E. Prime.

This officer is the Engineer of Gen. Anderson's staff, and at present engaged on the expedition under Gen. Sherman. He is a young men abou 30 years of age, of low and thick stature, with a dark sun-browned complexion, and an eye like a hawk. This feature is the prominent one of the man; dark and piercing and quick, like General Sherman's, it takes in everything at a glance Capt. Prime was born in Italy, and entered the regular service in July, 1850, as a 2d Lieutenant by brevet, having been appointed from New York. At the beginning of the present war, he ranked as a 1st Lieutenant, but was promoted to a Captaincy on taking the present field of operations.

Capt. H. C. Symonds.

The Commissary of Subsistence of Gen. Anderson's staff, originally entered the service as a Second Lieutenant by brevet of First Artillery in July, 1855. He is a native of Massachusetts, and was appointed from that State at the beginning of the war. He was a First Lieutenant, to which rank he had been promoted in 1856. He now ranks as a Captain.

Major Robert Murray.

The Surgeon of Gen. Anderson's staff, originally entered the service in June, 1846, and is from the State of Maryland, of which he is a native. Previous to our present difficulties he ranked as Captain, but was promoted on engaging in active service to the rank of Major.

Col. Lovell H. Rousseau.

To this officer it may be said the city of Louisville owes its safety. When all others were lulled into inactivity and disregard of the dangers which threatened and have culminated in the present infamous invasion of the State by the rebel Government, he took the necessary steps to secure the safety of the city and raised two regiments of men who have followed him on the present expedition under Gen. Sherman, and of one of which he is the Colonel. Col. Rousseau is a man of mesmeric influence. His control over his men is absolute and perfect. They have the utmost confidence in him and will follow wherever he may lead. A native of our State, he has long been identified with the interests of our city and the politics of the State, and when he returns Kentucky will welcome him as her true son, and Louisville as the man who has truly defended her and stood in the hour of need between her and danger.

Lieut. Col. Richard W. Johnson.

This officer is now in command of the Home Guards encamped at Lebanon Junction. He is connected permanently with Colonel Jackson's regiment of cavalry. A graduate of West Point, he originally entered the service as a Second Lieutenant by brevet of the Sixth Infantry in 1849. He is a Kentuckian and was appointed from Kentucky. He has been twice promoted, and was, at the opening of hostilities, a Captain of Cavalry, from which grade he has lately been promoted to the rank now held by him. He is a bland, affable man, fascinating in his manners, a true gentleman in the Chesterfield sense, an officer of much merit and reputation in the army, and, as commander of the Home Guards, the pride, admiration, and particular "pet" of that battalion.

The Men.

Of the number of regiments or of men composing the brigade of Gen. Sherman it is not proper to speak, and we have too much love for the cause and hope for its success to desire, by a single word, to endanger or injure it. Their reputation as soldiers many of the men in this expedition have yet to make, and it would be premature in us to speak of their bravery and prowess until it shall have been tested and proved. As to their appearance, we may speak. The sick list claims but few. Their hardy, strong frames defy disease, and exposure has no terror for them. Strong and healthy, they possess additional strength in their perfectness of discipline, and few of those in the regular service are better qualified for active field duty than are our men. They are comfortably provided for, their clothing being strong and warm, and their contentedness is plainly evinced by their light-hearted and gay disposition.

THE REBEL OFFICERS.

Of the organization of the rebel command and staff we have as yet no definite knowledge, and can only speak knowingly of the chief officer in command.

Brigadier General Simon B. Buckner

Is a man whose subtlety has been made as obvious as his baseness and gross atrocioueness. A graduate of West Point, long in the regular service, twice brevetted for gallant conduct in Mexico, his qualifications as an officer and his personal courage are not to be reasonably doubted. He is a young man of about 37 years of age, and we regret to say a native of Kentucky. A little above the medium height, his sparseness gives to his figure an appearance of tallness which does not belong to it, and lends to it a commanding appearance. In his manners he partly affects a certain suavity and urbanity. His influence is considerable with the inexperienced, and when he is disposed his style is especially charming to untutored men. His lack of honesty is patent to the country, and he stands before it divested of all the attributes of honor, truth, and integrity, which honest men so tenaciously cling to. Forgetting and dropping all claims to honesty, he visited Washington city, represented himself there as loyal, ingratiated himself into Gen. Scott's confidence, obtained permission to inspect all the fortifications in that vicinity, made the Hon. Robert Mallory and others believe that he wished to take service in the army of the United States, returned to Louisville and remained for a brief period without giving the slightest public indication that he contemplated any disloyal movement, and yet at the very time, during that very sojourn in the midst of us, he held secret conferences with the conspirators here and designated a military commander to head them in the outbreak that had been agreed on. Kentucky expected much from him, and, like a true mother, pushed and aided her son on to many successes and benefits, but he has turned traitor to her soil and leads a hostile army to her invasion. In this he is the traitor, and for this let him die the death of the traitor.

Among the officers on the staff of Gen. Buckner are Alex. Cassedy, Thos. H. Hunt, Robert Biggs, and others from this city.

IRON FRIGATES FOR ENGLAND.—Before the close of the late session of Parliament, says the London Times, the admiralty got two millions and a half pounds sterling voted for new iron frigates. This sum is just the price for building five of these costly vessels according to the present standard as to size, etc., and the work of construction is to commence forthwith.

BIRTHPLACE OF PRESIDENT LINCOLN.—President Lincoln will undoubtedly have a special interest in the conflict now going on in Kentucky between the Unionists and secessionists in the vicinity of "Rolling Fork," near Muldraugh's Hill, as he was born in that neighborhood.

GEN. CRITTENDEN.—In a deservedly complimentary notice of our gallant coumander of the State troops the New York Times says of Gen. Thos. L. Crittenden, a son of the Hon. John J. Crittenden, that he was a Lieut. Col. of a Kentucky regiment in the Mexican war, was aid to Gen. Taylor at the battle of Buena Vista, and gave the celebrated reply to Santa Anna when that chieftain demanded a surrender—"General Taylor never surrenders." Col. Crittenden was consul at Liverpool under Taylor and Fillmore, was elected General recently of the Kentucky State Guards, and is now appointed the chief military commendant of the State.

FENCING AND CALISTHENICS.—There is no single accomplishment more necessary to finish the soldier or gentleman than the art of fencing. It quickens the eye, adds grace to the movements of the body, secures us against the dangers of sudden assault, and inspires the enemy with dread. Captain De Rue, who is perfectly skilled in this great art, has opened a class at Concert Hall in this city, and as he is remarkably apt to teach, and has a world-wide fame, scores of gentlemen will, no doubt, at once avail themselves of the advantages of his teachings. We invite attention to his card.

BETHANY COLLEGE, VA.—The twenty-first session of this old and popular institution will commence on Monday, the 7th of October. The faculty for the present will consist of A. Campbell, President, W. K. Pendleton, C. L. Loos, and W. P. Mosbiech, with competent tutors. Under these experienced instructors the full course of the college will be conducted, and no pains or labor spared to furnish the student with the amplest assistance and facilities in every department for his progress towards graduation.

MILITARY AFFAIRS IN THE INTERIOR.—The Lebanon Kentuckian says that that quiet town has for the last week presented the appearance of a military encampment. The Home Guard of Greensburg have been there for three or four days waiting to escort arms and munitions of war to General Ward's camp. They are a fine-looking set of men, and will do valuable service in defence of their native State. General Ward will open a camp near Campbellsville immediately.

☞Camp Sherman, at the Fair Grounds near this city, gradually grows into military importance, and recruits for Col. Pope's regiment are coming in daily. The commissariat, in the hands of Captain Jno. W. Clarke, is admirably managed, and gives universal satisfaction. The camp is now under perfect military discipline, Lieut. Col. Jouett, in the absence of Col. Pope, having the command.

J. C. BRECKINRIDGE.—Alluding to the statement that John C. Breckinridge had sought refuge in a military camp in Morgan county, the Lexington Statesman says the rumor is false, and asserts, by authority, that Senator Breckinridge neither has, nor intends to have, under existing circumstances, any connection with military camps, or other military affairs.

NEW POSTAL REGULATION.—In accordance with the desire of many citizens, Postmaster Speed will cause the postoffice to be opened at half-past seven o'clock A. M. and closed at five P. M. in winter, and opened at seven and closed at half-past six o'clock in summer. The new arrangement will take effect the first of October.

COL. ANDERSON'S REGIMENT.—The skeleton of Col. Gen. W. Anderson's regiment, about two hundred in number, have gone into camp temporarily at Woodland Garden. I. B. Webster has been commissioned as Lieut. Col., and W. N. Hallman as Major. We have great hope of the effectiveness of Col. Anderson's regiment.

MAGOFFIN'S RELEASE.—Edward Magoffin, the Missouri rebel, who was a prisoner with Mulligan's command at Lexington, Mo., was released after the fall of that city. The secessionists, it is said, would not have made an attack on Lexington if he had not been taken there as prisoner.

DESTRUCTION OF WILLIAMSBURG.—A despatch from Frankfort says that Williamsburg, in Whitley county, on the Tennessee border, is in ashes. Apprehensions exist as to the safety of Richmond and other places near the line. Camp Robinson is the only barrier against Zollicoffer.

TO BE MUSTERED IN.—Capt. Jacob Ruckstuhl's cavalry company, one hundred and four in number, to be attached to Col. Bayles's regiment, will be mustered into the service to day by Captain Gilbert, of the U. S. army. Capt. R.'s company is quartered at Camp Sherman.

CHAPLAIN OF THE THIRD KENTUCKY.—The Rev. J. H. Bristow, of the Methodist Church, has received the appointment of Chaplain to Col. Rousseau's Regiment of Federal troops. He officiated at the service at the Shelby-street Church yesterday.

☞Charleston papers state that within a month fourteen vessels have entered Charleston, and thirty-three Wilmington harbor, and that in the same time one hundred and eighty thousand dollars in duties has been paid to collectors.

☞Thos. Totten, a private in the Forty-ninth Ohio Regiment at Camp Anderson, was accidentally shot and killed in camp on Wednesday. He was from Fremont, Sandusky county, Ohio.

ACCIDENT.—A little girl about four years old fell into the gutter from the sidewalk near the corner of Seventh and Green streets, last evening and sustained the fracture of a leg.

YOUNG'S KENTUCKY CAVALRY.—Prince Salm de Salm of Prussia, has been appointed Colonel of Young's Cavalry Regiment, on the Potomac.

APPOINTED.—Mr. Wm. Blanchard, of Washington, has been appointed Consul to Melbourne.

The Captains and Lieutenants are to be elected by the companies respectively.

Captains of companies will report to me at the Galt House in Louisville as soon as practicable. No company must be removed from its point of organization until ordered into camp. Transportation to the point of rendezvous will be furnished. None but active vigorous men and men of steady habits will be received.

Capt. Richard W. Johnson, of the regular army, has been detailed to act as Lieutenant-Colonel. I intend to make this regiment in all respects equal to the best drilled and disciplined corps in the regular army.

I know this call will be patriotically answered. The soil of Kentucky has been wantonly invaded.

$5,000 WORTH OF SEASONABLE

LOUISVILLE JOURNAL

SEIZURE OF REBEL FUNDS.—Information having been lodged with the United States District Attorney at New York recently that money to the amount of $40,000 had been deposited in the Park Bank, to await an opportunity to transmit the same to Georgia, a deputy marshal was ordered to seize the same, and it was libelled in due form of law. The money came from the house of Baring Brothers, bankers, of London, and was destined for the Augusta Insurance and Banking Company, at Augusta, Ga.

LIFE AT FORT LAFAYETTE.—As we have some prisoners there, the following account of affairs at the Fort Lafayette prison, from the New York Evening Post, will possess considerable interest:

The place is not so much a prison as it is a somewhat "exclusive" boarding house, with sufficient but not less borders in the establishment. The rules are conspicuously placed on the wall of each room, so that he who runs may read, and the facilities for reading are somewhat in advance of those for running. They prescribe that the prisoners' rooms must be ready for inspection at 9 o'clock in the morning; that washing must be done in the yard of the fort; prisoners must not talk with any member of the garrison, but can communicate their wants to the sergeant of the guard; they must not leave their rooms unless in company with a guard; they must obey implicitly the directions of any member of the guard, and they are notified that any transgression will be punished by solitary confinement, or such other restrictions as may be necessary to a strict enforcement of the rules.

There is no one specially stringent about these rules. The prisoners must and must not do certain things, but they are allowed many privileges. Those who are together in one room can converse freely with each other, but they are notified that they must not talk about the political affairs of the country in the hearing of any member of the garrison. They can have lights in their rooms until eleven minutes past nine o'clock, and of course must be dressed and lead talking must cease for the night. For an hour in the morning and afternoon the prisoners can promenade about the premises (in company with a guard) and at such times can call on their friends and fellow prisoners in the other rooms. The doors of the rooms are opened at 5 A. M., and closed at six o'clock in the evening. It may be stated that the prisoners generally appear to their privileges, and that there have been no infringements of the rules sufficient to merit punishment.

At Fort Lafayette, as elsewhere, "manner," as Falstaff says, "is a good soldier." Those who have the means for doing so can live nearly as well at Fort Lafayette as at any hotel. In one large room, which is about sixty by fifteen feet, there are no less than three of the "better class" of prisoners, who have both friends and money. These have clubbed together, and have made arrangements by which their meals are furnished to order. Their funds are deposited with one of the officers, who acts as banker, and the wife of one of the soldiers does their catering, cooking, and washing. In most outlandish fashion for food supplies new-papers, tobacco, and other luxuries, the prisoners give an order on the banker. The club-man get a good breakfast and dinner (with a moderate allowance of dinner of some kind) at a cost of about one dollar per diem for each. They are subject to no exercise of any kind, and supplies are furnished at a reasonable rate.

In the morning, when the Coney Island boat or first train from Brooklyn arrives at Fort Hamilton, the prisoners who have made arrangements can get all the city morning papers, and are thus daily informed of affairs in the outside world. Their correspondence only is subject to censorship, and, as has already been stated, letters written to or by the prisoners are opened and read by the proper officer, and the few persons who have been released from custody have been forbidden to carry away any written communication.

The club-men live well. They pass their time in reading, discussing (among themselves) matters and things in general and "the situation" in particular, and playing cards, and checkers for the book. Tobacco is not tabooed and the club, for a large part of the day, is under a cloud in more senses than one.

Similar but smaller clubs have been organized in some of the other rooms. There are a few prisoners, some of the sailors and others, who have no money, and to such are generally conferred the authorities for their daily bread. These are furnished with good and wholesome but plain food, differing but little from the rations of the soldiers who are their keepers. All have an unlimited lookout view of the bay and Staten Island shore. The passing ships and steamers break the monotony of and the three daily arrivals of the Coney Island and Brooklyn boats are looked for eagerly.

The prisoners are allowed every privilege consistent with their safe keeping, and have no reasonable cause for complaint. The loss of liberty is, of course, the main privation, but those prisoners who have been discharged testify that, so far from the imposition of any unnecessary restrictions, they were more favored during their incarceration than they had any reason to expect when they were sent to Fort Lafayette.

Eighty-eight prisoners have been committed to Fort Lafayette on various charges of treason and kindred offences. A number of these persons have been discharged on the production of evidence which relieved them from the charge of crim. con. with the enemy or on taking the oath of allegiance.

SIXTH REGIMENT INDIANA VOLUNTEERS.

To the Editors of the Louisville Journal:

MADISON, IND., Sept. 24 1861.

I see a correspondent of the Cincinnati Commercial, writing from your city, speaks disparagingly of the appearance of the Sixth Regiment Indiana volunteers, under command of Col. Crittenden of this city. The fact was that the regiment was not full, and as there had been no intention to move the men from this camp near this city for several weeks our State authorities had seen back ward in sending their clothing and equipments, and from lounging around in camp during the hot weather, many of them had thrown away their shoes and even portions of their other clothing, and hence their exterior appearance was very unfavorable as they passed through your streets.

But when the news reached here that Louisville was menaced by the rebels, notwithstanding his men were not prepared for a sudden movement, Col. Crittenden immediately started with half his regiment and what arms they had for your city. I understand the clothing and equipments have been sent to them at the camp at Lebanon, and they will now compare favorably with any companies on the ground. They are true men, and when the real tug of war comes them they will not be found wanting. Many of the men in this regiment were tried in Virginia and showed that they were of the proper metal. I think Kentucky regulars will have no cause to doubt their valor and courage during the struggle in that State.

Yours truly, INDIANA.

CINCINNATI HORSE MARKET.

TUESDAY EVENING Sept 24.

Uncle Sam still continues to monopolize the purchase of horses. Thirty-seven more agents empowered by the various departments of the army, that are now able to attend the survey at the cost of one hundred dollars gold, to the same standard, are sold on Fifth street at very low prices, be the same ample afterwards the dealers have fair bargains to sell. Many Kentuckians and Indiana have been selling horses here of late to Army agents.

Crew and passengers of schoone Col. Long, taken by the U. S. ship James Dean S. p. 4, and brought to Fort Lafayette on the 22d inst. number.
